CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The culture of these lovely flowers for garden purposes, and for cut flowers, is of the simplest.

The young plants are set out about two feet apart in a sunny situation. When they are five inches high, the tips are pinched out to encourage side growths, sufficient of which are allowed to grow to form shapely plants. If extra bushy plants are desired, a further pinching-back can be done in December.

Limiting the number of branches, and, later on, of the flower buds, assures larger flowers.

Stake the plants carefully, and keep them moving slowly until February; then encourage them with regular waterings, and feeding with liquid manure, if specially good blooms are desired.

Those who wish to grow exhibition blooms should write for our free leaflet.

ZINNIAS

for cutting and display

Three fine examples of Giant Dahlia-flowered Zinnias.

Sow early spring and summer.

In our hot climate, few annuals grow as luxuriantly and flower as freely as Zinnias. Magnificent garden displays and ample quantities of flowers for house decoration are the result of thoughtful selection and cultivation of this splendid subject.

Seed should be sown in seed boxes, and transplanted when the seedlings are large enough to handle into deep, well cultivated, lightly manured soil. Ample water, occasional dressings of weak liquid manure, and constant picking of mature flowers considerably extend the flowering season. Full sunshine gives the best results.

In planting out, allow, for tall varieties, approximately 15 inches either way. Dwarf types need only 9 to 12 inches to develop properly.

Zinnia seed offered by us is the finest the world can produce.

Giant Dahlia-flowered.

Height, 2 to 3 feet.

Wide, full petals form flowers of great size and splendid keeping qualities. Almost any colour scheme may be arranged, and dazzling effect is achieved in beds of separate or contrasting colours.

ASTERS

are great favourites

Early sowings in seed boxes may be made during August if the boxes are kept in protected situations. Outdoor sowings are best made when all fear of frost is over. In coastal areas sowings may be made until January. Protect all seedlings from the sun until they are established.

Almost any soil will grow good Asters if the top 9 to 12 inches are particularly well worked, as the plants are very shallow rooting.

Coarse, heavy soils need draining, and plenty of well-decayed manure dug through. Thin, sandy soils should be built up with plenty of manure, in order to retain the moisture.

Asters need plenty of water to produce their best.

Illustrated . . .

At Left—ASTER EL MONTE.

At Right—ASTER LOS ANGELES.

Super Giant Asters.

Two really outstanding Asters that have the grace and beauty of Californian Giant strain, with blooms of extra large size, great depth, and full centres—the cut flower par excellence.

EL MONTE.—A most effective clear crimson colour — unusual in Asters. Illustrated 1/- pkt.

LOS ANGELES.—A glorious shade of pure shell-pink, favoured alike by home gardeners and florists. A wonderful variety. Illustrated 1/- pkt.

WILT-RESISTANT AMERICAN BEAUTY.—Large incurved blooms, with long stems. Seven distinct and lovely shades. 1/- pkt., 3 pkts. 2/6. Mixed colours, 1/- and 2/6 pkt.

WILT-RESISTANT CALIFORNIAN GIANTS.—Light blue and dark purple in separate shading. 1/- pkt., the two for 1/9.

PETUNIAS

Sow spring and summer in cold districts; autumn, spring and summer in warm districts.

Mix this small seed with equal quantities of sand to ensure even distribution during the sowing process. Soil in the seed pan should be freely watered and left to drain. Scatter the seed with the sand, and press firmly into the surface, then protect the seed box with a pane of glass over a sheet of newspaper. As soon as the seedlings appear through the soil, give a little more air, and tear a hole in the paper, increasing the size each day, until eventually it is removed. Do not allow the soil to dry out at any time.

Petunias thrive in our warm, sunny climate, and require a fairly rich, well-cultivated soil.

Bedding Types.

"AUSTRAL" GRANDIFLORA SUPERB-ISSIMA—MIXED SINGLE.—A magnificent strain of large fringed flowers, in a marvellous assortment of colours, with rich veining. Without hesitation we say this is the finest strain in cultivation 1/- and 2/6 pkt.

Dwarf, compact-growing single flowers are most effective, and the plants may be used either singly or in conjunction in beds or borders of mixed colours.

ROSE OF HEAVEN.—Brilliant rose.

ROSY MORN.—Pink with white throat.

VIOLACEA.—Deep violet.

6d. pkt., 5 pkts. for 2/-.

MARIGOLDS

for Sunny positions

Marigold, Chrysanthemum-flowered.

Seed of all Marigolds may be sown in boxes kept in a warm sunny situation. The first sowings are usually made in August, and the seedlings pricked out into other boxes of prepared soil. The plants are placed in their permanent positions when they have established themselves sufficiently.

Marigolds will respond in any well-worked soil, but magnificent displays are assured when well decayed manure is worked properly through the ground, particularly in thin, sandy soil. In protected situations, plants will bloom into the winter.

AFRICAN.

Ball-flowered.

The large flowers of his type become ball-like in appearance because of the numerous frilled florets that are so densely arranged. Height, $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 feet.

Double Lemon, 6d. and 1/- pkt.; Double Orange, 6d. and 1/- pkt.; Mixed Orange and Lemon, 6d. and 1/- pkt.

Carnation-flowered.

Extremely strong-growing plants produce heavy growth and clean, healthy foliage. The Carnation-like flowers are loosely formed, full-centred and have broad florets. It is the overlapping of these richly coloured florets that gives the appearance of great depth to each shapely flower.

GIGANTEA SUNSET HYBRIDS.—Deep orange, through golden orange, light yellow, lemon to delightful primrose. Flowers 4 to 5 inches across. Height 4 feet. 1/- and 2/6 pkt.

GUINEA GOLD.—Brilliant orange, flushed with gold. Height 3 feet. 6d. and 1/- pkt.

SUNBEAM.—Plants vigorous in growth, $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet tall, and often 2 feet through; very pleasing clear lemon flowers. 6d. and 1/- pkt.

YELLOW SUPREME.—Frilled florets of creamy lemon-yellow; honey-like fragrance. Height about $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet. 6d. and 1/- pkt.

Coilarette.

CROWN OF GOLD.—Most unusual and attractive. The upper portion is composed of incurved disc florets, while the lower portion has broad, drooping, lightly waved petals. Sweetly scented blooms of rich golden-orange, carried on splendid stems; plants 2 feet high, flower profusely. Odourless foliage. 6d. and 1/- pkt.

Chrysanthemum-flowered.

The flowers of this new strain are identical in form to a lovely incurved Chrysanthemum. Broad and narrow petals intermingle to make magnificent blooms, borne proudly on long stems. The rich colourings are golden-orange, orange and yellow. Height 3 feet.

Separate Colours, 1/6 pkt. Mixed, 1/6 pkt.

PHLOX DRUMMONDII

One of the most satisfactory annual bedding in commerce. Its long flowering season, magnificent range of colours and wonderful adaptability are definite reasons for its great popularity. Massed in beds of separate colours, many desirable results may be obtained; when planted in mixed shades for bordering, its effect is most attractive.

Sow seeds in boxes or pans of sandy loam, and keep the surface well moistened. Phlox is not particular as to soil—a well-worked soil with plenty of water will give wonderful results.

ANDERSON'S EXHIBITION.—A magnificent strain of this favourite annual. Contains all the best and richest colours, each having a clear white or cream eye 1/- pkt.

SEPARATE COLOURS.—White, purple, scarlet, red and white striped, crimson with white centre, rose with white star, white with carmine eye, reddish lilac, rosy-chamois, buff-yellow, vermillion red, violet with white eye, salmon-pink 6d. and 1/- pkt.
